New look for Center looms

By PAUL HAYES

WILMINGTON- The MBTA will assume ownership this week of five downtown properties, that will eventually be cleared to make room for an $8 million expanded commuter rail station and 227-space parking lot.

The properties - owned by Rocky Ventile, Joe Langone, David Katz, Don Caggiano and the Veterans of Foreign Wars

(VFW) corporation - will be MBTA owned once the transfer is approved by the state Registry of Deeds, expected to occur by Friday.

According to MBTA representative Joe Pesaturo, the MBTA and the existing property owners negotiated the offers for the downtown parcels. Amounts were not disclosed pending land trans-

Bus contract swap sees Trombly return

By FRANK J. AMATO

WILMINGTON A deal between Bruce Transportation and Trombly Motor Coach Service has been approved by the Wilmington School Committee and will have Trombly buses rolling in Wilmington once again next week. The agreement was approved by the school committee June 9th.

The agreement requested that the two bus companies exchange school transportation contracts.

Bruce Transportation had two years remaining on its contract with Wilmington, and Trombly recently won the contract in Chelmsford from Bruce. Bruce Transportation has been the vendor in Chelmsford for three years.

The deal, which had already been approved in Chelmsford, become effective with the 1999/2000 school year.

Bruce Transportation, which recently purchased a 6 bay maintenance facility in Chelmsford, and also provides transportation for the Greater Lowell Vocational Technical School in Tyngsboro has a large financial interest in remaining in Chelmsford. "We have 54 busses that are housed there. To loose the 30 busses that we use for Chelmsford would be a big loss," said Bruce Lyskawa, owner of Bruce Transportation. The Chelmsford facility also maintains busses for the Ayer, Shirley, and Boxboro school systems.

Conservation commission

Day care center rejected

By CHARLOTTE COOPER

WILMINGTON The proposed daycare facility project on Concord Street was finally closed after more than one year of delays, but the proposed projects on Fioreza Drive, Andover St., Forest St. and Faulkner Ave. were not.

Rich Williams of Hays Engineering came before the Commission to once again discuss the Concord Street project. "At the last meeting, [we] had a list of things the Commission [needed clarified]. We revised the FEMA map notation to 6/2/99, [we] added a fence to the rear of the parking lot, we already had a fence [on the side]," Williams said. He said that the fence goes at the rear and behind the building.

"We changed the words

'optional landscaping' to 'proposed landscaping.' We added an additional test well by flag #11," Williams said. He indicated that he believed the elevation near the septic system was 78.5 feet. "[I] think the test hole [was dug] in the first place to show that the sand infiltration system would work. We've added 2 feet [of height] to the flood plane," Williams added.

"I disagree with [your] ground elevation and [I] looked at the old septic plans," John Keeley, Assistant Director, Planning and Conservation. He indicated that the plans are still somewhat questionable. He said that the town's engineer expressed concerns regarding the survey, about the benchmark that was used. He indicated that he thought the contour data didn't match up and that maybe the elevations are incorrect. "You don't show a benchmark on the plans," Keeley said.

"The bottom line is that where you have the test hole sixteen inches down, [I've] seen the area inundated [with water]. Williams said that the course sand in the test hole made it difficult to establish an accurate estimate groundwater levels. He said that he observed the elevation to be at

Shawsheen Tech to build

His home; his dream come true

By CHARLOTTE COOPER

"I didn't think I could feasibly do it. By the time I realized I could, I only had two weeks before the deadline," Michael J. King said. He took a chance and won the lottery at Shawsheen Tech, which will net him one complete house.

King, a lifetime resident of Wilmington and employee at the State Street Bank in Quincy, wants to stay in his home town. "All my friends are here. My family is here. I grew up here," he said.

"My parents told me about the advertisement for the lottery, but at that point, I didn't realized that they were going to give me part of their land. They asked me why I wasn't applying," Mike said.

"I told them I didn't think I could feasibly do it [financially]. I didn't have the money to buy a piece of land from them."

He said that the land has been in the family for more than forty-five years. "They told me then that they would give it to me," he added.

He said that some of the criteria were that he needed a suitable piece of land and proof of ownership, that he had to submit house plans and he had to be able to get a loan. "My father and I went to the operational forum to obtain information about building the house.

"I went out and bought a book of plans and ordered one of them. It was for a Colonial with a deck. The dimensions are 40' x 28' with a 12' deck," he said. "I submitted the plans, a picture of the house with the dimensions. Next I had

MIKE KING OF WILMINGTON found out last April that he is the winner of the lottery for a house to be built by the Shawsheen Tech students. Annually Shawsheen Tech chooses an applicant to have their house built, students provide the work, the owner provides the land and the materials. Open Space Survey

500 people respond

By PAUL HAYES

WILMINGTON- The town has received a strong response to a survey that will determine the future of open space lands.

Approximately 500 completed Open Space Surveys have been returned to the Planning and Conservation Department, three weeks after the Open Space Survey was distributed with the town water bills, and in the pages of the Town Crier, according to Assistant Planning and Conservation Director John Keeley.

Residents have until Sept. 1 to return the survey.

The survey will be used to form goals and objectives for the town Open Space and Recreation Plan, now being written by the Open Space Committee.

"The survey will help us find out if the rest of the community agrees with the committee," Keeley said.

The committee is in the midst of writing the plan, which will set the town's open space priorities, and will also make the town eligible for state funds, that can be put towards the purchase of open space land.

The state requires a community to have an Open Space and Recreation Plan updated every five years, in order to be eligible for "self help grants." Wilmington last updated its Open Space and Recreation Plan 12 years ago.

A completed plan is expected sometime this fall.

It's YOUR Money
by Joyce Brisbois

THE IRA THAT LASTS FOREVER

... Well maybe not forever, but making the right decisions on an IRA can keep your money growing tax-deferred for years and lessen the income tax due on the money when it's taken out.

At 70 1/2, an IRA owner must start taking distributions from the account. The first decision: how? One method recalculates the owner's life expectancy each year. Each distribution is a smaller fraction, and the money lasts longer—but at the owner's death, taxes are due on the whole thing at the end of the following year unless a surviving spouse can roll it over into another IRA.

Better: term certain, where life expectancy is figured only once. Say there's a 19-year life expectancy; 1/19th must be taken out the first year, then 1/18th, and so on. At the owner's death, the beneficiary can continue withdrawing money at the same rate, leaving the rest to grow. If the owner dies before 70 1/2, the heirs may spread the distribution over their own lifetime.

Let us help you make the most of your savings with wise tax decisions. Check with the tax people at

Annual report cards from the state: Local nursing homes receive their grades

TEWKSBURY — The state recently released its annual report cards on the 540 nursing homes across the state, with most in this area receiving passing grades.

With more than 55,000 people in nursing homes across the state, the Division of Health Care Quality within the state Department of Public Health has been keeping close tabs on the quality of care being offered.

Each year the survey looks at five specific areas: administration, nursing, resident rights, food services and environment.

By and large, most of the nursing homes in this area were at or above the state average.

Officials noted grades were slightly toughened this year, with only about 15 percent receiving a perfect score of 132 this year as opposed to 31 percent last year.

Jean Pontikas, assistant director of the Division of Health Care Quality, noted the reason for the high scores is that the nursing homes need to reach a minimum standard to receive Medicare and Medicaid money.

None of the nursing homes which did poorly on the survey were in this area.

The following is a list, by city and town, of how some of the local nursing homes were graded by the Division of Health Care Quality. The top score this year was 132. The average score was close to the top at 123.

Anyone seeking more information can call the DPH Division of Health Care Quality at 1-800-493-8333.

Or those interested can visit the division's home page at <http://www.state.ma.us/dph/hcqscl.htm>.

Letter to the Editor

Not bad for an 85 year old person

Dear Editor:

You haven't heard from me for quite a long time. You see, I had a wife God bless her, who used to edit what I wrote and wouldn't allow me to write really good stories about the town.

I felt really proud of myself Saturday afternoon. I walked all the way down to the new bridge and over it. It held me up because I saw a cement mixer on it just a few days ago. It's quite possible that I am the first person not working on the bridge to cross it without holding on. Not bad for an 85 year old person; that's all the way from Marion Street, too.

What did seem odd is that so many drivers couldn't read signs, no left turn from the bridge, no right turn from the bridge on red light. It's no wonder I almost got hit when I try to obey signs. I don't work anymore and those people do, even on Saturday. Boy some drivers take an awful lot of people to work with them.

They tell me I live in another world. Thank Heavens I don't have to bring up a big family today.

Whistle blowing aired at selectmen's meeting

By CHARLOTTE COOPER

TEWKSBURY - Rep - Jim Miceli made an unexpected appearance at the Tewksbury Board of Selectmen's meeting Tuesday evening to discuss the disruptive practice of train whistles in Tewksbury, as well as other issues brought up by the board.

"There aren't too many laws like this in the books. I've got two of them: I filed one for Wilmington and one for Tewksbury," Miceli said. "I got them to waive the law requiring [whistle blowing] at intersections. We got it through both communities. Only five towns in the Commonwealth have this distinction."

"In Wilmington, there was no problem. We filed the law, notified the 'T' and complied with all of the requirements relative to gates, crossings, [and such]." He indicated that Guilford was presenting the problem for Tewksbury. "I think we're on our way to solving the problem now," he said.

"The amendment passed in 1997, section 85 [states that] no railroad corporation including any locomotive engine operated by, or on behalf of, the Massachusetts Bay

Transportation Authority or Guilford Industries shall permit a locomotive engine passing on its railroad [tracks] in town of Tewksbury to sound its whistles at any crossing which has [specific] safety features."

He said that when he got the complaint, he checked into it and decided to go right to the Department of Telecommunications & Energy. "I know how important it is to the residents that live in the areas affected," Miceli said. He presented his case to Brian F. Cristy, Director, Transportation Division of the DTE. He said that Mr. Cristy sent a letter to Guilford by certified mail.

The letter restates the amendment to the law and that since Tewksbury now has all the proper safety equipment in place, Guilford Transportation Industries, Inc., must comply with the law. "We're waiting for a reply from Guilford. We'll give it a few weeks and then I'll report back to the town. I hope by then they will have adhered to this," Miceli said.

Selectmen Joe Gill brought the issue of the traffic problem on Dascomb Road to the table. "We're beginning to get quite a traffic problem on Dascomb Road. Can there be some sort of a study done to address that issue?" he said.

"That's a good point," Miceli said. "I agree with you. It's really bad. It backs up almost all the way to [route] 93."

"I think [we may have help] with that," Town Manager David Cressman said. "California Products has a requirement in their application to address the Dascomb Road corridor. They'll be looking for a grant to address [the traffic problem] from 93 all the way up the hill, beyond Shawshen. They're supposed to put together the application for that."

"They've made some preliminary engineering studies. Once they've got the application together, they'll probably be meeting with a delegation from [Andover and Tewksbury] to talk about it. There are other facilities in the area where expansion could probably occur within five to nine years," Cressman added.

The board thanked Miceli for being instrumental in obtaining the 3 million adjustment from NESWC. "This is the third year and we've finally made it over the goal line," Cressman said. "It's a plus. We were down in Washington trying to [get their help]." Cressman said they were going back to Washington to lobby again.

Miceli indicated that Tewksbury may finally be getting the reimbursement for school construction. "We're getting nearer the budget. I'm confident that Tewksbury is going to look very well, as far as those educational monies are concerned," Miceli said. "As far as school reimbursement is concerned, we're making sure the John Ryan Middle School is right on track."

What happened to our marriage?

What ever happened to our marriage? We had such a beautiful beginning. Where did we go wrong? As a rule people feel the lack of money and sex are the major causes for breaking up a marriage. This is probably true. However, I feel the lack of proper communication is the greater culprit. The unknown subtle every day remarks, gestures, attitudes, and actions can chip away any marriage. These human tools of communication establish the climate of a relationship. Too often, these forms of expression to help are draining and demeaning. "After all, I know what is best for my spouse. It's not necessary to ask his opinion or give him a choice. I will make all the right decisions. This, of course, is to benefit my spouse as well as myself." The sad part is that most individuals have no idea they are harming the one they love. Bad habits, negative environmental exposure, and lack of understanding can become immersed in the character of an unknowing soul. Being a responsible husband or wife and doing all that is expected of your role, may not be enough.

Finding peace and tranquility with your partner is indeed the criteria for happiness. However, many lack the intuitiveness to realize the demeaning subtleties of destruction. It's indeed sad when you are tearing down the one you love, but having no idea year are. This could be why we hear so often: "I just can't understand women." "If he could only understand how I feel." Without meaningful communication there is no true relationship.

Just being a good listener can be a therapeutic experience for your spouse. Often a spouse comes home from work frustrated and angry over some incident. He/she needs to be listened to. He/she may be rambling, it may not make sense, or it may be complete exaggeration. Regardless, your spouse needs to be heard. Otherwise, he/she may find someone else who will listen. What better place than home to vent one's emotions? The last thing a venting spouse needs is a correcting response. "Why do you always complain?" "It's probably our own fault." These responses can have the same effect gasoline has on a smoldering fire. These incidents call for support, not condemnation. Time will come when you will need the same patient support.

A greater risk is when no incident is necessary to elicit a put down. Some personalities expect perfection of themselves as well as of their loved ones. This can cause loved ones a lifetime of feeling inadequate. Trying to live up to another's expectations can turn into a personal failure. Once again the perpetrator has no idea the harm he is causing. He however, is very conscious of the effects. The cold and frustrated response of the partner can cut deeply. The sexual encounters and pillow talk slowly diminish. The perpetrator sees only injustice and the unfairness of his loss.

Then there are the couples who have utopia until children arrive. Sharing one's love and no longer being number one can be a difficult adjustment for some. It gets worse when parents disagree on how to discipline and raise their child. This can cause a power struggle never experienced by these lovers. Contradictions regarding the child's bringing up can be most disruptive. Both parents are seeking the best for their child but may be going in different directions to achieve their goal. The last thing parents want is to hurt their child; yet, the lack of communication can cause deep resentment and even hatred toward each other.

Don't allow this to happen. Give dignity to each other by listening, compromising and understanding. Become conscious of the possible causes that may be producing these negative effects. Beware of your partner's withdrawal, anger, coldness, and avoidance behaviors. Contentment, understanding, and acceptance do not generate these negative responses.

However, if you wish to end a marriage, initiate the following:

1. Never praise the many positive things your partner does.
2. Wait until something negative happens to become verbal and involved.
3. If your partner reaches out to you by helping or contributing, forget the good intent and focus on how it should be done.
4. If your partner has different tastes, or at times thinks differently, do not accept this. After all, it is not your way.
5. Minor disagreements should not be dealt with until they accumulate and grow into a crisis situation.
6. Then let your partner know his anger is juvenile and uncalled for.

Ironically, married couples who are trying to make it together are using these procedures. If you find yourself following these guidelines, your marriage will soon be in trouble, but at least you'll know why. Make a point of knowing that these negative subtleties exist.

Wilmington Library Notes

WILMINGTON - Are you one of the 14,271 registered borrowers who have a Wilmington Library card? If not, put it on your list of things to do in September, which is National Library Card Signup Month. A library card connects you and your children to a wide range of resources. Make it a special event when your child receives his/her first library card! According to Ann K. Symons, president of the American Library Association and a school librarian, "Finding information today is a whole different ballgame - one that requires knowing how to use both print and computer resources. Our children must be able to do it all if they are to succeed in the next century."

Any resident of Wilmington with proof of residence and a picture ID may apply for a library card free of charge. There is no minimum age. Children under age 14 are required to have a parent or legal guardian present when applying for a library card. Signature of parent or legal guardian is required on the application of children under age 14. Children age 14 and over must present acceptable identification or be accompanied by a parent or legal guardian with acceptable identification to obtain a library card.

You can review the library's borrowing rules, which are listed on the web site: www.wilmlibrary.org

Merrimack Valley Library Consortium

Wilmington Memorial Library is a member of the Merrimack Valley Library Consortium (MVL), a library computer network that includes over 29 area libraries. Your Wilmington library card can be used in any member library. A book mark listing the names of these libraries is available at the main circulation desk. If you want to use your Wilmington library card in one of the other six library networks in Massachusetts, you may register your card in that network.

Congratulations to Summer Readers

The last children's program of the summer, the Beginning of Summer Inside-Out Upside-Down & Backwards Party was held last Thursday with 85 children attending. Treats for all included the story The Cut-Ups by James Marshall, a skit with a giant talking rooster, prizes and refreshments. Winners of the Guess the Number of Peanuts contest were announced. The actual number of peanuts was 3,892 with tie first prize going to Chris Azevedo for his guess of 3,900 and Andrew Logan coming in second with his guess of 3,852.

Over the summer all previous records were broken in the number of children signing up for the Summer Reading Program (832 to date) and in attendance at special programs with 2,599 children attending 44 programs. The Summer Reading Program officially ends Monday, August 30. Children visiting the library may now pick up their reading certificates. Be sure to show your reading folders to your school librarian when returning to school for a special bookmark and pencil gift.

Fall Internet Class Schedule
Patrons who participated in the summer Internet classes at the library had positive comments about learning to surf. The fall session of

TO: Parents of Shawsheen Elementary and Grade 1 Boutwell Students

MEET THE PRINCIPAL

Mr. Robert: Apolloni

Monday, August 30th

6:00-7:00 p.m.

Shawsheen Elementary School Cafeteria

This event will also be an opportunity for Shawsheen, students to visit classrooms before, the first day of school on August 31st.

Dear Wilmington Public School Students:

Welcome to the 1999-2000 school year. I hope that your summer vacation has given you opportunities to relax and have fun with your family and friends.
Perhaps you also had a chance to share some learning experiences through travel opportunities or trips to your local public library for a literary adventure.

Your teachers and principals are already busy getting ready for your arrival on Tuesday, August 31, 1999. Your classroom and school corridors are being decorated, books and materials are getting unpacked, new equipment such as computers and multimedia centers are being installed and the anticipation of your arrival fills the air with excitement.

The new school year presents all of us with new opportunities for learning, for making new friends and for growing in our understanding of ourselves and others. May this school year be a great success for each and every one of you.

I look forward to welcoming you back on August 31, 1999.

Very truly yours,

Land taking this week

fer approval.

"The land owners have agreed with these amounts," Pesaturo said.

However, the VFW membership voted recently to reject the MBTA offer, because it was too low, according to VFW member David Trane.

Trane, part of the VFW's three person "relocation committee," felt the MBTA's initial offer covered only the cost of the VFW's headquarters building, and did not take into account their 7,000 square foot lot.

"I don't feel the land was taken into the equation," Trane said.

This forces the MBTA to take the land by eminent domain, and will continue to negotiate a price with the VFW. Trane said the VFW is considering whether to appeal the MBTA offer.

The MBTA will charge rent to occupants of the buildings occupying the five downtown parcels. Rental rates will be set according to each tenants business size and location, Pesaturo said.

During this rental period, affected businesses will continue to search for new homes, with the assistance of MBTA relocation consultant Peter Sleeper. Businesses must be removed before construction of the enlarged commuter rail station begins next spring.

Trane was critical of MBTA relocation efforts, and said the MBTA has been slow to assist the VFW with relocation.

According to Trane, the VFW lined up a potential new location in June, and at the time were the only party who had expressed interest in the location. Trane said the VFW expected Sleeper and the MBTA to make an inquiry into the property on the VFW's behalf.

However, the MBTA waited until August to inquire about the site, by which time two other parties had also expressed interest in the property.

"There are not many spots left for us to move to in Wilmington," Trane said. "If we can't find a new location the VFW may be forced to close."

Pesaturo said he was not aware of any problems involving business relocation, and fully expected all affected businesses to be moved to new, suitable locations within the next six months.

The acquisition of the properties further solidifies the MBTA's hold on the town center, and diminishes the likelihood the proposal will undergo a formal site plan review.

Pesaturo said the MBTA had no intention of making changes to the commuter rail station plans, which they are "very satisfied" with.

Selectmen Bob Cain and Mike McCoy, Town Manager Mike Caira and Planning and Conservation Director Lynn Duncan have all expressed a desire that the MBTA rail station plans undergo a formal site plan review, a desire bolstered by Town Meeting's approval of Article 41, which requests the Board of Selectmen and town legislative delegation withhold support for the project until it satisfies the conditions of a Planning Board site plan review.

The MBTA will return to the Planning Board this fall for an informal site plan review, to present

"[You] still haven't calculated the riverfront compensation area around the whole lot," Keeley said. Richard Nylen, Jr., lawyer for Hays Engineering, introduced the concept that since the area was already disturbed from the actions under the previous project, the single residential dwelling proposal, it was impossible to calculate the actual level of disturbance to the area.

"This presents an issue for us because of the previous project. [You've asked us] to ignore the previous project's [disruptions]. We can't determine what went on before," James Morris, Chairman for the Conservation Commission, said. Nylen said that they were forced into working the day care project as a new one. "We need to know if [we should] treat this as new," Morris said. he indicated that if it is to be treated as new, there is much more information that needs to be supplied that was before the Commission at this point. "We still haven't heard from the Department of Environmental Protection yet," Morris added.

"Our intent is to bet an Order of Conditions and present it to the D.E.P. When we didn't hear from the D.E.P., we decided to go forward [to you with this project]," Nylen said. Both he and Williams requested that the Commission close the hearing. The Commission honored that request.

Although the proposed new dwelling on Fiorenza Drive is not within 100 feet of wetlands, it is close to a detention basin. "It may be nonjurisdictional with regard to the wetlands. A lot of things have changed," Keeley said. He indicated that the topographical map dated from 1994 is questionable and needs to be updated. The Commission continued the hearing until their next meeting in September.

The proposed single family dwelling on Andover was also continued until September. "[The purpose] is to subdivide the primary family home," Lauri Beals, applicant, said. The proposal still needed some changes since the property had not been formally subdivided as of this meeting and the Commission chose to continue the hearing.

Tom Mannetta, representative from Atlantic Engineering for Contemporary Builders, came before the Commission to discuss the project proposed for 152 Faulkner. "We are proposing to build a 24' x 32' dwelling on the existing 5,000 square foot nonconforming lot," Mannetta said. He indicated that the project also includes building a 12' x 16' deck, which would push the building area to within 12' of the bordering vegetative wetlands.

"This is one of four lots for Contemporary Builders. The owner won the court case, the right to develop the 5000 square foot lot," Keeley said. "There are a few issues regarding the wetlands." He indicated that there are problems with the flags and there are some serious problems with dumping trash and other materials in the wetlands.

"Besides [our] twentyfive foot setback, we have a fifteen foot nodisturb zone. We do take our setbacks seriously," Jolene Lewis, Conservation Commission member said. Flooding issues were also raised by residents and abutters to the proposed project. "[There are] issues to be resolved," Morris said. "Setbacks, wetland delineation, fencing." The Commission moved to continue the public hearing for the next meeting.

The Forest Street project was also sent back to its developer for some adjustments. The proposal is for a teardown of the existing dwelling and construction of a new house.

stating that I was qualified for a loan," he said.

"I had to submit all the information to the school and then they'd admit you to the lottery. At the same time, I'd already planned a vacation and was scheduled to leave on the same day."

"I thought there would have been a line up for this lottery," Mike said. He indicated that there were only two candidates this year. "It was only between two of us. I knew I had a 5050 shot." He didn't really believe that he would win the lottery and was both pleased and surprised that he did.

"It is a complete house, the carpentry, the plumbing, electricity, everything," Mike said. "I have to pay for the lumber, but not the labor."

"The plans have gone through the Planning Board and the Board of Appeals. They've all approved it. Now it needs to pass the Conservation Commission. It's a question of the stream designation; whether it's perennial or intermittent," Mike said.

Another complication with the land is that it is home to an endangered species: Mystic Valley Arthropod. "I had to go to the engineer. We had to find out the [arthropod's] habitat and plot where the house needed to sit. The house needs to be a certain distance from the habitat," Mike said.

Mike and his father Ronald went before the Concom last Wednesday night to informally discuss the proposal to build on one of the hammerhead lots they own on Mill Road.

"We've come before the board to discuss the site prior to [submitting plans]," Dan Brown, attorney for the Kings, said.

"The plans must be submitted to the Conservation Commission to decide by a Request for Determination," John Keeley, Assistant Director of Planning and Conservation. "We need to make a determination on whether the brook is perennial or intermittent."

"I notified both the owner and [Dan Brown] his attorney that if they were working [cutting trees] within 200 feet of Sawmill Brook, or 100 feet of wetlands, they could be violating the Wetlands Protection Act," Keeley said. He added that their engineer told them the stream was intermittent, but Keeley said that the Commission needed to make that determination since most US Geological Survey maps show it as perennial.

"A site visit by the Commission would be [favorable] for a request for determination," Keeley said. "It's a pretty good sized stream. The pictures show large cobbles. The Commission should go look."

"I don't have a problem looking [It's] highly unlikely the stream is intermittent," James Morris, Chairman of the Conservation Commission said. He indicated that all Conservation Commission policies must be satisfied if they wish to have a permit granted to them in September.

"We want to help make it work, but we want it to be right," Morris said. Keeley suggested that they consult the habitat map first.

Wilmington's Shawsheen Farms

Farm flourishing despite dry heat

By PAUL HAYES
WILMINGTON- Ken Chisholm knows he's fortunate. He has seen the pictures of countless area farmers, holding withered ears of corn, whose fields have turned to dust in this summer's drought-like conditions.

Yet Chisholm, owner of Shawsheen Farms, has raised a bumper crop of tomatoes, red peppers, jalapeno peppers, squash, zucchini, beans, corn and sunflowers in his third growing season.

The secret to Chisholm's success: water, and lots of it.

Two private wells irrigate Chisholm's crops, which are split between a one acre field and three greenhouses.

"If you have water, this has been a great growing year," Chisholm said. "If not, it's been a nightmare."

The ample water supply, and successful harvest, have fueled Chisholm's ambitions to expand the farm, to occupy the remainder of his families land.

Chisholm currently works part-time cultivating approximately 50 percent of the land available to him at Shawsheen Farm, and continues to work as a roofing laborer.

Within the next two years, he looks forward to expanding the farm to a full-time, year round operation within the next two years, selling bedding plants in the spring, vegetables in the summer, mums and pumpkins in the fall, and greenhouse plants in the winter.

Shawsheen Farms is located on a former mink farm operated by Chisholm's father and grandfather. A decreased demand for mink fur, and opposition by animal rights groups, led to the decision to close the farm in 1987.

In the years that followed, Chisholm graduated from the University of New Hampshire with a degree in horticulture, and began the task of converting the mink farm into farm land.

The waste and debris associated with the mink farm were removed, and the land was cleared for crops, and was first farmed in 1995. The produce grown at the farm is sold at a farmstand, located at the front of Chisholm's property along Hopkins Street, next to where the property is divided by Mink Run.

In one greenhouse, Chisholm plucks a ripened tomato the size of two swollen fists, grown with the aid of "plastic mulch," a sheet of black plastic that blankets the floors of his greenhouses.

The plastic mulch keeps the vegetables free of dirt and pests, and allows Chisholm to grow his tomatoes, peppers and sunflowers organically, without pesticides.

"I wouldn't grow tomatoes without it," Chisholm said.

Tewksbury Transit short on drivers

By PAUL HAYES
TEWKSBURY- With no applicants, and several openings, Tewksbury Transit Inc. looks to hire bus drivers for the upcoming school year.

Tewksbury Transit is coping with a driver shortage that is continued from last year, and becomes more acute due to the additional bus routes created by the opening of the John F. Ryan Middle School next month.

In addition, Tewksbury Transit purchased nine new school buses, increasing the town's total fleet to 32 buses, partially to cover the additional Ryan School routes. These buses will be expected to cover approximately 75 Tewksbury Public School bus routes.

Tewksbury Transit Inc. has no new applicants to fill the additional driver positions the new routes, and new buses will require, according to Tewksbury Transit manager Andy LaFortune.

"If you know anybody, we're looking," LaFortune said.

Until new drivers are hired, Tewksbury Transit administrators and office staff, including LaFortune, will assume the unassigned bus routes themselves.

"[The lack of drivers] won't affect service," LaFortune said. "We're prepared."

The strong economy has led to a national lack of bus drivers. The normally part-time positions, with limited pay, are often passed over in favor of more lucrative, full-time employment.

In addition, stricter CDL licensing tests has decreased the number of qualified bus-driver applicants, LaFortune said.

But drivers or not, the buses are ready to go.

The bus fleet was inspected over the past week, and according to LaFortune the buses are all in "tip-top shape."

Tewksbury Transit did not include a handicapped accessible van among their nine new vehicle purchases, and has no plans to begin handicapped-only transport services until an outside contract required it.

Tewksbury Transit survives the summer months doing charter work for various camps and youth organizations, including the YMCA, Cambodian Mutual Assistance Organization of Lowell, and the Tewksbury, Lowell and Burlington recreation departments.

Potential applicants can call Tewksbury Transit at 851-8863, or stop by their main office at 555 Whipple Road, near the Lowell line.

"Quality care in pleasant surroundings"

Wilmington Senior Topics

WILMINGTON- The Senior Center has just received a letter from the Massachusetts Bankers Association alerting seniors to the risk of Y2K-Related Scams and Fraud.

The Massachusetts Bankers Association and its member institutions want to alert the possibility of Y2K-related scams and fraud aimed at seniors. Among the swindlers that caregivers should be on the lookout for are the following:

• Anyone purporting to be a bank examiner or bank officer who calls ostensibly to confirm that the intended victim's bank accounts are Y2K compliant and, on that pretext, ask for account numbers, PIN numbers, Social Security number, etc. A bank customer will never receive such a call from a genuine bank examiner or bank officer and should not respond. Instead, the intended victim's bank and the Attorney General's Office should be contacted.

• Anyone purporting to be a bank officer who tells the intended victim that the bank is having trouble preparing for Y2K and needs to transfer the intended victim's balances to the special Y2K bond fund "in order to keep your money safe" until the date change. It can be assumed that any such call is a fraud and, like the bank examiner scam, should be reported to the intended victim's bank and the attorney General's Office.

• Anyone purporting to represent a credit card issuer who calls to say that the intended victim's credit card will not work after January 1, 2000 without a special magnetic strip which requires confirmation of the card number, Social Security number, mother's maiden name, etc.

In addition to the threat of scams and fraud, there is also the danger excessive withdrawals of cash involve the risk of theft and unplanned impulse spending early in the New Year. The consensus at this point is that people really shouldn't need any more money for the weekend of January 1, 2000 than they would for any other weekend.

Cooperative efforts to identify and prevent Y2K scams and fraud build on the protocols established by the Bank Reporting Project developed by the Executive Office of Elder Affairs, the Massachusetts Bankers Association, the Office of the Attorney General, the Division of Banks, and the Office of Consumer Affairs and Business regulations.

The banking industry is at the forefront when it comes to Y2K preparedness. Not only have banks devoted several years and billions of dollars to computer upgrading in anticipation of Y2K, but state and federal have rigorously monitored the industry for compliance. As of now, it is estimated that 99 percent of all banks in the country, including those in Massachusetts, are well prepared for the Y2K date change.

While no one can say there will be no Y2K glitches, and while it is prudent for everyone to keep and review all records, bank statements including, for the months immediately before and after the date change, seniors can be assured that their funds are protected by the Federal Deposit Insurance Cooperation (FDIC). The adage is as true as ever: There is no safer place for people's money than in a bank.

If there is anyone who is receiving such calls, please feel free to call the Center for assistance. I will follow through in getting information to your bank and the Attorney General's Office. Ask for the director, Terri Marciello, at 657-7595.

DeWolfe breaking new ground

Collecting for Rosie's Place

TEWKSBURY - As a leader in homeownership services, DeWolfe has long been associated with breaking new ground. But this time the ground is not a new DeWolfe office, it's a new DeWolfe cause: homeless women.

DeWolfe is joining forces with Rosie's Place, the nation's first drop-in and emergency shelter for women, in an impressive ground breaking campaign entitled, "Framing the Future." In addition to its own financial support, DeWolfe is seeking the help of clients and neighbors to raise 2.4 million dollars for renovations and enhancements to Rosie's Place.

The Tewksbury office of DeWolfe, in conjunction with 40 other DeWolfe locations throughout Massachusetts, will display special donation canisters from now until October to raise funds for a revitalized and innovative Rosie's Place. DeWolfe manager, and the homeownership team at the Tewksbury office encourages local residents to drop in and make a contribution to the Framing the Future campaign.

"For 25 years, Rosie's Place has offered women the opportunity to reach beyond poverty to secure a life of dignity and hope," said CEO Richard DeWolfe, a Framing the Future advisory committee member. "Rosie's Place has contributed enormously to the quality of life in our community and DeWolfe is proud to be part of this progressive and important fundraising drive."

The shelter does not accept any city, state or federal funding. The DeWolfe Companies has been a long time supporter of Rosie's Place, and is pleased to be one of a select number of companies in the Boston area involved in the Framing the Future initiative.

The DeWolfe Companies, with over 100 branch locations throughout New England, offers the convenience of home buying and home selling, mortgage financing, insurance services, relocation services and moving services - all in one stop.

Pop Warner dives into another season

By JEFF NAZZARO
Sports Correspondent

New Wilmington Pop Warner President Scott Winn describes his position as a mix of administrator and customer service representative. When the former Wilmington Little League President is not tending to the mountains of paperwork that accompany the youth football and cheerleading chapter's daily operation, he's making the rounds at Robert Palmer Park on Glen Road, talking with parents, hearing and soothing concerns.

It's Monday evening, around 6:00, and August practices, which began on the 2nd, have kicked up again after a three-day weekend layoff. The hundreds of Pop Warner participants, ages 7 to 13, are grouped into teams - one each football and cheering for A through D, two each for E - and Winn, taking a moment to survey the expansive scene, likes what he sees.

"There's not one cheerleading spot in the whole town," he says, attributing that in part to the growth of the sport in the area and also to the great success of last year's A team, which advanced to the Pop Warner regionals in Connecticut and took fourth place. But Pop Warner popularity hasn't been limited to cheerleading.

"Up 'til 10 years old there's not a slot in town for either boys or girls," Winn said. "This is one of the biggest enrollments in the town's history."

For Wilmington, which Winn points out is a small town where soccer seems to be always increasing its already vast popularity, that speaks volumes.

Winn has plenty of help in dealing with these numbers of participants. In fact, he doesn't even deal directly with the players, cheerleaders, or the coaches. Those tasks are left up to Rich Delucia, who's in charge of football, and Karen Clark, who directs the cheerleading. Any concerns from players or coaches go first through Delucia or Clark and then, if necessary, to Winn.

This differs a little from his experience with Little League.

"Little League as president is more of a hands-on thing," he says. "You've got your fingers into everything."

Winn of course, still has plenty to do. Pop Warner recently instituted a Little Scholars program, which dictates that all participants must be academically eligible to play, similar to high school sports. Thus, each player or cheerleader must present his or her last report card or be signed off by their school as eligible before being able to participate. Add to that responsibility for Winn the usual administrative tasks and paperwork and the regular weigh-ins for players.

He stops for a minute to ponder all this.

"Pop Warner has gotten to be," he begins, then pauses, measuring his words before speaking again. "It's not as casual as it used to be. ... there's a lot of paperwork."

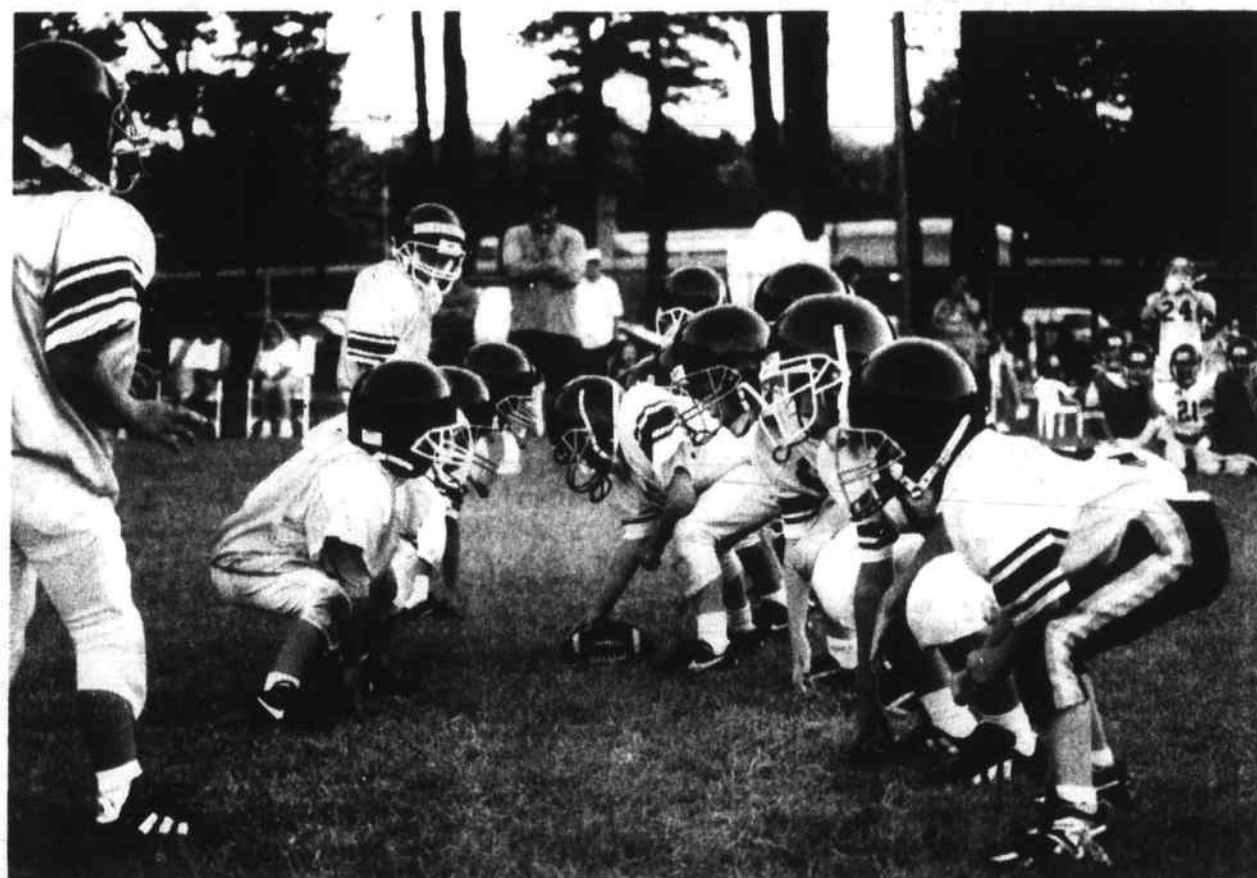

Then there's the fundraising. To make ends meet, Wilmington Pop Warner raises funds in four ways. They have their annual ad book, a sticker drive, snack shack revenues, and registration fees. And so far they're doing fine. They even got $8,000 worth of brand new floodlights installed at Palmer Park courtesy of Lightoiler and Sylvania.

And still yet, there's the "customer service" stuff. The customers of course are the parents.

"You've got to make the people feel comfortable," Winn says. "This is an era where people are actually afraid of football a little bit. ... You really have to make these people feel like their kids are safe, as far as you can promise something like that."

With the start of school, four-night-a-week practices will be cut in half to two and soon thereafter the games will begin, played every Sunday at Palmer Park and on the road. The road is where Wilmington will be its first two weeks, taking its contingent of players and cheerleaders first to Watertown on Sept. 12 and then to Wakefield the following week. The first home games are on Sept. 26.

Wilmington Pop Warner had plenty of action going on during Monday night's practice held at the newly named Robert Palmer Field behind Town Hall. Above, both the E teams, Blue and White, scrimmaged one another, as here they line up for a play, while, below the C Team cheerleaders practice a routine with Jessica Welch (center) and Kayla Capacheietti (to her right) all smiles in doing so. Many teams, individuals set milestones

Will Wilmington High sports duplicate last year's success?

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

As the summer days are coming to an end pretty soon, that means we have just about two more weeks until the high school sports season starts up again. Next week the Town Crier will print the fall sports schedules that were faxed here by athletic director Jim Gillis's office. Speaking of Gillis he must be giving credit as not only will all of the football home games be played at WHS, but so will the girls and boys soccer and field hockey games. It's about time.

Anyway, last year was a pretty successful year, so what will be expecting this year? As for the Town Crier goes we will be adding a new fall section (for more information please read on), and I will try as hard as I can not to trash the Cape Ann League. But as for the sports section goes, this fall season brings many new ideas and fresh stories that we hope you will enjoy.

Some of the highlights from last year consisted of the boys soccer team going to the Eastern Mass. championship game—a year after losing in the state finale, and losing to Medway, 2-1 in overtime. Also, the ice hockey team, who had its best season in over a decade, lost in the Division 2 North finals to Saugus, 4-1, in front of 2,200 fans at Boston University.

As for individual milestones plenty of them were met such as:

- Dick Scanlon, the head coach for both the soccer and baseball teams, not only took the soccer team to its second consecutive Eastern Mass. championship game, but he also won his 250th career victory as a baseball coach.

- Two scoring records were broken, as Justin Vallas broke the all-time scoring record in hockey, with 118 career points, breaking Dennis Moran's record. And a female record was broken, as Lindsay Bruno, a junior last year, broke both the all-time goal record and points record for the girls soccer team. Her 26th goal broke the goal record set by Erin McKenna, and her 11th assist broke the all-time scoring point mark held also by McKenna, who previously held it with 36 points.

- Both Brian Shea and Pat Heffernan of the wrestling team set the all-time mark of career pins set by Brian Murray with 27. With one pin this season, Heffernan will break the record.

- Laura Winn, a senior, won the Class D State 600 meet with a course record at the Reggie Lewis Center with a time of 1:38.79. She also took seventh in New England, while becoming the first female ever from WHS to perform in the Nationals. Also in track, Matt Kacamburas won the Class D State two mile run at 9:55.75.

- Finally, Eric Banda, of the football team, rushed for 235 yards and scored 3 touchdowns in an 48-13 victory over Lynnfield at home which is believed to be the best day of a running back in over 20 years, while, Jay Gillis of the boys cross country team set a course record with a time of 16:43 in the 3.1 mile run as a junior.

So what do we expect for this upcoming fall season which starts in two weeks? Hmmmm...here's one guy's thoughts...

In the fall, Wilmington has 2 premier players from this state, and another who could be on that verge. Both Banda and Bruno return for their senior seasons, and both the football and girls soccer team looks very strong because of those two players. The football team needs everyone to stay healthy and everyone to be eligible to play, and should their full roster be ready to go for the majority of their games, expect a huge season out of Banda and a possible league championship and Super Bowl game. Maybe, that's getting way ahead of myself, but this team is loaded, their are questions but this team is pretty deep in the talent pool.

As for Bruno and the girls soccer team, they lost a big catalyst to their success and Bruno's success in center halfback Lisa Dellascio. However, Lisa's younger sister Diane was a member of the team as a freshman last season, and perhaps she will move into Lisa's spot of controlling the middle of the game. If Diane or whoever takes over Diane does half of what Lisa did in her career, expect a big season from the entire team, if that happens and if they sure up its defense with the loss of Amanda Lojek.

The third premier player, well the one who is on the verge of becoming one in my eye is Jay Gillis. A first class kid in every aspect, Gillis really came on as a runner for the cross country team, and the senior could continue to dominate the Cape Ann League once again.

As for the other fall teams, Aaron Ungrvarsky, a sophomore now seems to be a sensation in the making for the Golf team, while the field hockey and volleyball teams hope to rebound from sub-par seasons of a year ago.

Finally for the fall season, the Town Crier will be doing something different this year. Like the Thanksgiving supplement we put out to preview the big football game between Wilmington and Tewksbury, we will be putting out a special section like that every week of all the action and stories and previews of the Wilmington, Tewksbury and Shawsheen Tech football teams.

I have several reasons for doing this. First of all, I think it could be a great section of football with all kinds of different story ideas and so forth for all of your football gurus.

Secondly, this should enhance the regular sports section. The fall is the busiest time of the sports season, and without any high school football in the sports section, the allows us more space to do more with other teams, and the youth teams as well.

With the new section, we are looking for several writers and photographers to help out with both the new section and the regular sport pages. We have filled a few spots already, but in Wilmington we could use someone to cover the volleyball team, the Golf team, to help out with several Shawsheen Tech teams, and we could use a photographer or two for the Wilmington (away games only) and Tech football games. If you would rather write for another town, we could use someone giving a hand covering Tewksbury football games, as well as a reporter to cover the Tewksbury High Golf team. If you are interested give me a call here at 658-2346.

Lindsay Bruno broke last year's all-time scoring record for the girls soccer team as a junior.

Wilmington High senior Jay Gillis, pictured far right with several other league runners during last year's cross country season, had a tremendous junior season. Expect even a better one this fall.

Beals off to running start

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

Back in June, 30-year-old Wilmington native Susan Beals decided along with several female friends from work to run in a marathon to help raise money for Leukemia. But this wasn't any ordinary marathon around here, it'll be in Dublin, Ireland on October 25.

Since that decision to try running for the first time, nevermind a marathon for her first time, Beals suffered a stress fracture in her right tibia putting her running days to rest for the next 6 weeks. Since being healthy, only about a week or so now, Beals has put on the running shoes again, this time running in two different races this past week. On Thursday she ran in the Hood Run, a 4.3 mile course around the Charles River, and on Sunday she capped off her week back with a first place division in her age group of 18 to 30, in the Lowell YMCA 5-mile run with a time of 43:08.

"I did these (races) to train for the marathon," she said about performing with an estimated 200 other runners. "I was surprised that I wasn't sore (afterwards)."

"But I had a lot of fun, I'm glad I did it."

Beals, an occupational therapist assistant for Spalding Rehabilitation in Boston whose younger brother Rob was an outstanding second baseman for the Wilmington High baseball team in the early 90s, said it was there when decided to give running a shot.

"A couple of girls that I work with have done several different marathons, and now they are doing this one in Dublin and they asked me to join them. So I figured why not help people out, and go to Ireland for free."

Beals said that as part of the marathon she has to raise a minimum of $3,500 and if she does that all of her expenses will be taken care of. She said she'll be there for 9 days and plans of doing some sight-seeing as well.

If you would like to donate to the Leukemia Society on behalf of Susan Beals, you may send a check made out to the Leukemia Society and mail it to: Susan Beals, Wicks Circle, Wilmington, Ma 01887.

"Big enough To Serve You... Small Enough To Care"

Smith hopes to deliver once again

By JAMIE POTE

Sports Editor

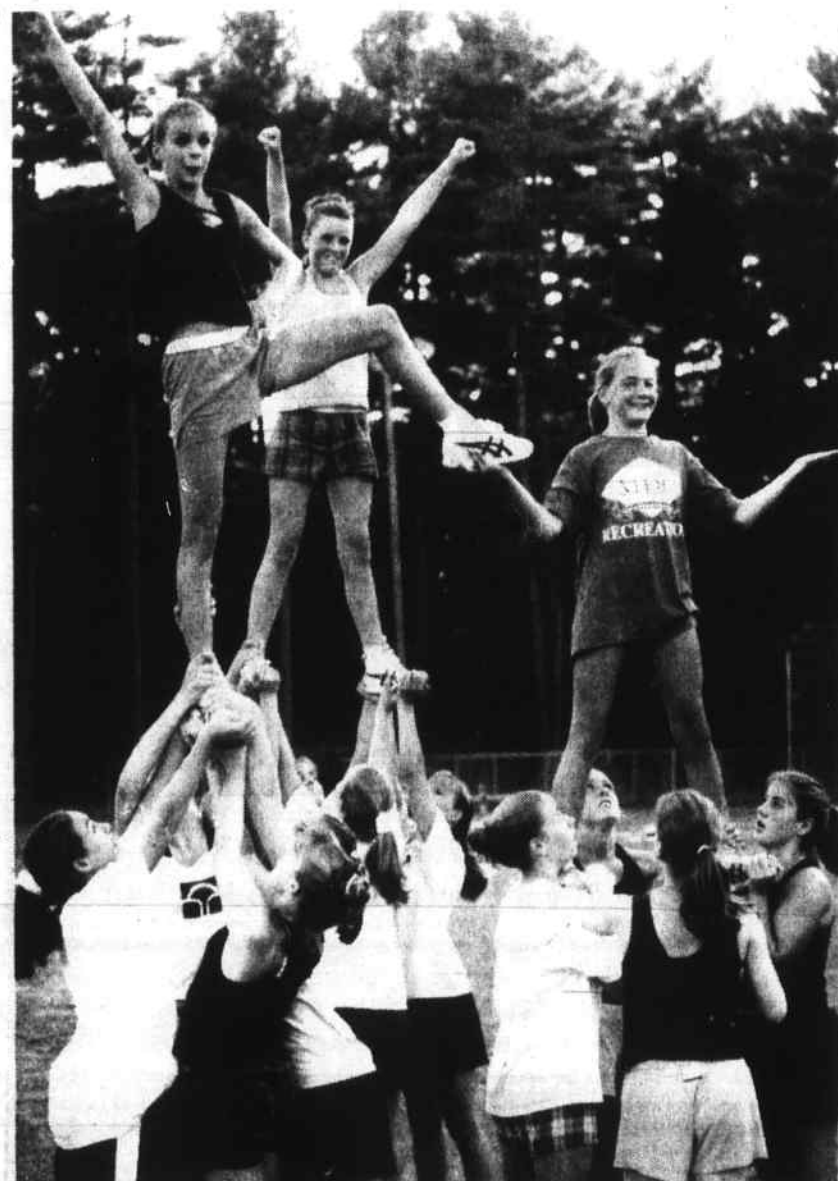

If you want to know just how much Wilmington resident Debbie Smith loves to coach cheerleaders, a sheer glimpse of that came Monday night. Standing and watching her girls do more than just a normal cheer, Smith voiced several instructions, while one hand was on her stomach protecting what she hopes will be her second cheerleader on the way.

"Yeah I was due yesterday," she laughed about being pregnant with her third child. "Once I have it, I'll need a week off the I'll be back here."

Smith was the Wilmington A Cheerleading coach last year. That was the same team who advanced further than another other one in the town's history, all the way to the New England competition. That's where the girls took a glorious fourth overall finish out of over 40 teams.

This year she still has 19 girls from last year's team returning including her daughter Kristina Buldini. The 28 girls she has now, were definitely showing off their cheerleading skills in one simple practice on Monday night. Whether it was a regular dance routine, or a tricky pyramid, these girls stood out and so did Smith.

"Our numbers are bigger than ever," said league president Scott Winn. "We don't have a cheerleading spot open from teams A through E, and a lot of that has to do with Debbie and the success her girls had last year."

Smith attributes the success onto Karen Clark, the third year cheerleading coach supervisor of the league. Smith says Clark has made a huge difference.

"Ever since she's come in the numbers have gone up, up and up. She has done a great job of promoting cheerleading and the numbers have been a huge increase since she's come in."

Smith has been the cheerleading coach at both Medford High School and Arlington High, but did she resign her post from her alumni Medford this past spring. It was last year when her and her family moved to Wilmington from Medford, and immediately it paid dividends when her volunteerism helped 25 or so girls capture what has never been accomplished here in Wilmington.

"Both (the A team) and the C team have placed the last three years so it's not just us who have had the success," said Smith. "It was crazy (last year). They were a really good team, with a bunch of good kids who worked very hard. It was exciting."

To get to the New England which were held in Connecticut, the girls had to place in the top three of the Middlesex League competition which they did with a third, then they added a third place finish in the Eastern Mass. finals. Had they been one of the top two finishers in the New England, they would have gone to Florida to take part in the Nationals.

"I think the Eastern Mass. (competition) was the toughest, because there's many big cheerleading towns who are in it," said Smith. "Wilmington's not big into yet, but I sure hope it will be pretty soon."

As for the team's chances this year?

"I think we are a little stronger, but you never know," said Smith. "As long as the girls do what they are suppose to. I've coached teams who have been stronger but haven't gone (that far) and I've coached who haven't been as strong and have gone further. It's all in the right chemistry. We're hoping (we can repeat)."

Soccer referee course offered in Tewksbury

The Tewksbury Youth Soccer League (TYSL) will be holding a soccer referee instruction class for players who want to referee under eight through under 15 games during the fall season. This class will be held Wednesday, September 8 for both new and experienced referees. The class will be from 7 to 9 p.m. in the community training room at the Tewksbury Police Station.

Referees are paid by the soccer league and class attendees are given priority on game assignments. All potential referees and coaches are encouraged to attend.

George D'Amelio, the Wilmington Pop Warner E Blue head coach, instructs his team on a play during a scrimmage they held with the E White team on Monday night. D'Amelio hopes saving cans will help save lives

By JAMIE POTE

Sports Editor

For George D'Amelio, collecting empty soda cans is not a way to make spare change. It's a way to save his son's life.

The Wilmington Pop Warner E Blue head football coach, hopes that an idea of putting 9 yellow trash barrels on the newly renamed Robert Palmer football field (or the Glen Road School), will raise a sufficient amount of money to benefit the Sunshine Camp of Casco Maine, a "wonderful retreat" for those families who need a hand in how to deal with a family member who has leukemia.

"I can't say enough about Wilmington Pop Warner," said George. "They could easily have said no, that they wanted the money to go back into their program and I certainly wouldn't have had a problem with that. But Scott Winn (the league president) wanted to help and wanted to give it a shot. It's a good thing that the program is doing, it's for a good cause and we should raise some good money."

D'Amelio's youngest of three children, Nicholas now 5 years old, was diagnosed with Leukemia when he was just two. When George and his wife, Valerie and other kids George Jr. (who is on the Pop Warner D team) and Emily, first got news of Nicholas' disease, they had a hard time dealing with it. And that's when the Sunshine Camp came in, for a week out of every summer of the last three years as they have a major impact on the mental healing process, while Nicholas has fortunately gone through the physical healing process.

"He's doing great," said his father proudly. "No problems right now. It's just the after affects we have to worry about. He went through the treatment for two years and it went pretty well. Now he's doing great."

D'Amelio says that the Sunshine Camp is a wonderful retreat for families who need help dealing with their own pain. He said the camp is only open in the summer for those families who have a child who has had treatment in the last 6 months. At Point Sabago in Maine, a few weeks of the summer is donated to the Sunshine Camp where the entire place is shut down just for leukemia families. That's when kids go off all day and play and do kids like activities, while the parents stay and talk in group sessions, with counselors, or psychologists. The parents also have their play time with many activities for them to do.

"You meet a lot of new friends."

said George. "You compare notes and stories with all of this people who are going through the same things you are. We were lucky, we went through hell, but a lot of families are going through much harder things than we did. It's a lot of stress on a family, and this camp does such a wonderful job of talking all of that stress away. There's no worries there at all."

D'Amelio said that the Sunshine Camp is moving to a multi-million dollar facility that will be open year round and that's what the change from the empty soda cans will help go to. He said the new facility will feature housing, and pools and etc.

"It's so tough to get a baby-sitter when your child has leukemia. And this place has so many volunteers and doctors who are there for you," said George.

D'Amelio got the idea of the trash barrels one day when he went to visit his father's restaurant. He said he saw a ton of empty bottles that were going back to the distributors, so that's when George came up with the idea of turning the empty soda can into a nickel and giving it back to help others kids who suffer what his son has gone through.

"Last year we got it OK'd by the town for the last two games and that was when no one knew about it and it was at the end of the season," said George. "Now we have banners being made, we have brochures going out, donation forms and we'll also have a water gallon for people who want to put their spare change in."

"In those two games last year there was about 20 or 30 dollars raised each game. We don't have any goals for this year but we think we will be able to do so much more."

Bay State baseball team ousted after stellar run

Wilmington's admirable run at the 1999 Bay State Baseball B Division title came to an unexpectedly early end last week in Framingham when the team managed only one win in three games and was ousted from the championship round.

It was a disappointing finish to an excellent summer season for Wilmington sponsored by Textron Systems. The team entered the championship round seeded second with an 18-5 record, and it had already beaten many of the teams qualifying for the final week.

Nevertheless, Wilmington finished with an outstanding 19-7 record in Bay State competition. The team won one gold medal and one silver medal during qualifying play.

Wilmington struggled both offensively and defensively during the championship round, giving up twice as many runs as they scored (24-12). Wilmington batters went strangely silent, and even the vaunted pitching staff showed signs of fatigue.

In the first game, Wilmington lost to Framingham, 15-8. The Wilmington pitching staff was uncharacteristically off the mark, as five different hurlers gave up 14 walks and double digit runs for only the second time in the tournament. The defense also committed three errors.

Wilmington fell behind 7-0 early. Alex Montalto pitched well in the middle innings, and the team rallied to close the gap to 8-4 after four innings. But Framingham pulled away with seven runs in the final two innings, including a three run homer.

Jeremy Schuh, Matt Hogg and Zach Mayo each had two hits to lead the Wilmington attack. Schuh also had two rbi's, Hogg had a pair of doubles and Mayo doubled.

Tom Miele, Jeff Youngclaus and Phil Russo each got a hit for Wilmington. Youngclaus and Mike

Frissore also drove in one run apiece.

Wilmington got back on track the next night with a 3-1 win over familiar adversary East Cambridge. It was the fifth tournament meeting between the teams, and Wilmington won them all.

Hogg and Sean Murphy were the stars of this game. Hogg crushed a three run homer to center with Mayo and Murphy aboard in the third inning to account for all of Wilmington's runs. The blast was estimated at about 220 feet.

Murphy pitched masterfully against Cambridge to get the complete game win. He gave up only five hits, including a solo home run in the third inning, and three walks while striking out seven.

Murphy, Frissore, and Steve Peterson got the only other hits from Wilmington in the game.

Wilmington lost its final game of the tournament to Arlington, 8-1 on Thursday. Peterson pitched well through four innings, holding Arlington to just three runs and getting four strikeouts.

But Wilmington just couldn't get any offense going aside from a walk, two hit batsmen, and Dave Griffin's bloop single. Hogg singled home Murphy with Wilmington's only run in the sixth after Murphy walked and took third on wild pitches.

Youngclaus had Wilmington's only other hit, and the second baseman made a spectacular diving catch in right field to thwart an Arlington rally early in the game.

A lot of High-5's went to the Brewers for their sportsmanship

The 1999 TeeBall Brewers started their season off with a brand new coaching staff who wasn't quite sure what to expect from their players. After several practices that consisted of fielding, hitting, pitching and running the bases, these kids proved they were ready to play ball with the best.

Coaches Perry, Chotkowski and Dozios gave a hi-five to each and every one of the players, for their effort and sportsmanship. The Milwaukee Brewers teammates are as follows:

Shawn Anderson
Michael Begonis

William Dalton
William Dozios
Christopher MacLeod
Cody Brooke
Jonathan Chotkowski
Jacob Dippersio
Sean Hodgdon
Andrew Merlino
Jeff Miser
James Peddle
Brad Perry
Michael Petrowski
Nicco Ripaios
Daniel Schmidt
Matthew Skotz
Daniel Smith

The players surprised the coaches with their enthusiasm and energy with each game they played. Each game, a different player proved to be the MVP. Each player progressed in some way during the season, whether it was learning how to catch, hit or throw the ball. The kids also had fun making new friends.

The Brewers ended the season with a pizza party at the park where the parents and coaches were able to show their appreciation for the outstanding effort made by the kids.

The Brewers would like to thank all family members for supporting them. Coach Perry would like to give a special thanks to Coach Chotkowski and Coach Dozios who gave their unconditional support throughout the season.

Northeast Computer Day Camp

The 11th annual Northeast Computer Day Camp has the largest turnout of campers in its history this summer. Three hundred campers from grades one through eight using educational software as its primary teaching tool, continued to thrive on the theme "Making Learning Fun."

According to the camp's director and founder Jay Crowley, many factors make up the camp's remarkable success. Forty new Pentium computers CD-ROM drives with stereo and Internet access are the primary component of our computer lab. Combine this with over $4,000 in new software to go along with our already impressive collection of educational games and software and you reinforce the basic philosophy of our camp.

"In addition to this, the swimming and sports components of the program continue to prosper primarily due to a professional staff with years of teaching and coaching experience and a counseling staff from the best public and private high schools such as Austin Prep, North Reading, Wilmington High School, Newton North, Northeast Metro Tech, Bishop Fenwick, Masconomet Regional and Wakefield High School. Colleges and Universities represented by our counselors include St. Anselm's College, Ithaca College, UMass Lowell, Worcester Polytechnic Institute and Framingham State College. All of our counselors have distinguished themselves in sports and leadership positions at their schools."

Many problems with new auto inspection tests

By DOUG WOOD-BOYLE

The fact is the new Massachusetts Enhanced Motor Vehicle Inspection and Maintenance (I/M) Program proposed by the state's Executive Office of Environmental Affairs and mandated by the federal Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) will start on October 1 whether the stations are ready or not.

Executive Office of Environmental Affairs spokesperson James Hunt said on Tuesday, "October 1 is the start date no matter what."

According to Hunt, the state must go along with the federal program or lose millions in federal road building money.

He did not have the exact figure at hand.

However, Hunt said, "The highway funds vary from year to year. With the number of projects going on, especially the Central Artery (Big Dig) that's a pretty large amount of money (to lose)."

In a March press release, from Massachusetts Environmental Affairs Secretary Bob Durand, announcing the program, it was stated, "The program is a comprehensive plan to reduce air pollution and its impact on the health of Massachusetts residents. The program achieves high environmental yield without the long lines, inconvenience and higher costs of the original federally mandated inspection system adopted in other states."

Durand stated, "Emissions from cars, trucks and buses represent more than 40 percent of all ground level ozone pollutants."

In the release, Dr. James Kenney of the American Lung Association of Massachusetts is cited as saying, "Health problems associated with air pollution are on the rise. The vehicle emissions inspection program adopted by this state more than a decade ago is outdated."

"Massachusetts needs the

Dr. Kenney also said, "The reduction in ozone formation will greatly benefit the future of our state and our children, and the improvement in diesel fuel emissions will safeguard the health of our senior citizens."

Under the proposed by the federal government, the state would have only 60 government run inspection stations. Hunt's figures show that Keating Technologies of Tucson, Arizona has signed up 1,180 service stations to be part of the program, as of Monday afternoon.

However, a local survey of stations that are participating in the program in the Middlesex East area shows that only a few have received their equipment as yet and no one has it fully installed.

Keating is the only company with the technology for the new inspection machines. They will be leasing the machines to the service stations for $450 per-month, for a minimum of a seven year period.

Many stations in the area only decided to be part of the program within the last few weeks and they have neither

ANTHONY MANCONI

George Gould went for his annual physical. After a complete exam, George said to the doctor, "I don't drink, swear or smoke and, I may add, I don't chase after women, how long can I expect to live?" The doctor smiled and said, "what for George?"

Sonny Pearlman was stopped at a crossroad waiting for a funeral procession of cars to go by. The next vehicle at the end of cars was a Brinks Armored Truck. Sonny turned to his wife Ruthie and declared, "well I'll be darned, you can take it with you after all!"

Dennis Tully told his teacher, "I lost my eraser." "That's okay," she said, "just use the girl's behind until you find your own."

Bette Coughlin told her handsome husband Michael, "help Matthew with his home-work while you can- he goes in the 4th grade next year."

Folks when life throws you a curve and the stress is great, do what John Masfield recommends, "I must go down to the seas again, to the lonely sea and the sky. And, all I ask is a, Tall Ship and a Star to steer her by."

Church ushers have very important duties. They pass the collection plates or baskets and also gently wake up those who have dozed off during a monotonous long sermon. Unfortunately, one morning, it was impossible to wake one poor old soul up. The medics were called and, after carrying out the fifth person on the stretcher, the medic in charge said to the head usher, "we finally have the right one!"

Blackie Vega said to me, "Chipper this new tax on liquor has increased my 'cost of living' a dollar a quart."

I remember when Uncle John Shea told Aunt Nora, "I don't know about Father Dan, he sure must like flowers, every time I go to church the altar is covered with either Chrysanthemums or Lilies."

Jimmy Arigo took his lovely wife Anita out to dinner. She ordered steak and Jimmy ordered a fish dinner. When the waiter came, Jimmy exclaimed, "why do you have your thumb on my fish dinner?" The waiter smiled and said, "sir, I didn't want the fish to slip and fall on the floor again!"

Golden times in Reading

"In the late 1950's an aspiring musician got a telephone call from his agent which would change his life and help establish his orchestra as the finest band playing 'big band' music in New England," notes the Reading edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"Today, Robert Bachelder looks trim and in excellent condition as he relaxes in his living room. He says, 'My agent said, 'How would you like to be the house band at the Totem Pole?' The same week I became principal of the Coolidge School in Melrose (in 1957 or 1958). I taught English for two years at Melrose High School and headed the guidance department."

"While most people find one career enough, an energetic, talented and hard working man who was born in Lowell wore two hats for the rest of his interesting life. The man who has been a professional musician and teacher-administrator for more than 50 years says, 'The jewel in the crown is the Totem Pole (job), the T.V. Rhumba, that record, and having my own band.' Looking back over an illustrious and rewarding career as a musician the lanky man says, 'I still arrange 90 percent of the stuff we play.'"

"If you went to the Totem Pole Ballroom from 1955 to 1964 when it closed you danced to the 'big band' sound of Bob Bachelder's 17 piece orchestra in the huge amphitheater, but before Bob Bachelder got the job the owner of the ballroom wanted to see which band was more popular - Freddy Guerra's or Bob Bachelder's. A battle of the bands resulted and for $2.25 a couple including tax you could have seen the 'battle.'"

"Today an older and wiser Bob Bachelder says, 'Two weeks later we became the house band at the Totem Pole....'"

Silver threads in Wilmington

"After 64 years of providing Tewksbury and Wilmington residents with diapers, denture adhesive and everything in between, the Silver Lake Pharmacy was officially closed," notes the "Wilmington Town Crier."

"The following day, all of Silver Lake Pharmacy's patient records were transferred to their new owner, the CVS Pharmacy at Wilmington Plaza."

"A combination of increased competition from chain stores CVS and OSCO, and the domination of the pharmaceutical industry by Health Maintenance Organizations (HMO's) and insurance companies, eventually drove Silver Lake Pharmacy out of business."

"I simply enjoyed the practice of pharmacy as I grew up to know it," said Silver Lake

WEDNESDAY/THURSDAY, AUGUST 25, 26, 1999-PAGE S-3

Pharmacy owner Al Staniewicz. 'It was a different era, when no chain stores or HMO's existed.'

"A throwback. In a glass case at the rear of the Silver Lake Pharmacy, a revolving Timex watch display has been converted into a museum of pharmacy artifacts."

"Perched where watches once sat are tins and tubes of various defunct products: Amion Tooth Powder, Nylast Nylon Washer, Pure Arrowroot, Zerbats Capsules, Rexall Shaving Cream, flash bulbs, and Pure-Pac Licorice Powder."

"To some customers, the old products are curiosities, but to Gail, daughter to Staniewicz and an employee of the pharmacy for 24 years, they are symbolic of the pharmacy's roots."

"It makes me think of the way [the pharmacy] business was years ago," Gail said.

"The Silver Lake Pharmacy was the last of Wilmington's five independent pharmacies, outlasting the Center Drug Store, North Wilmington Pharmacy and Wilmington Plaza Drug, which was purchased by CVS. The Village Apothecary, although still in business, no longer has a pharmacy."

"The personal service and customer accommodations Silver Lake Pharmacy provided left it as one of the few remaining vestiges of a different era of pharmacies."

"We provided as much personal service as humanly possible," Staniewicz said. This included a delivery service and customer credit lines. 'As an independent [pharmacy] we were more apt to give better personal service, because we weren't as rushed....'"

Inspections

received their equipment nor been advised as to when the training programs will begin.

New England Service Station and Auto Repair Association (NESSARA) President Roger Montbleau said he has been meeting with the Registry, the EOE and Keating Industries on a daily basis to make sure that all of the facts get out to his members as soon as they are available.

"My understanding is October 1 their will be a program, no matter what," Montbleau said. "NESSARA is urging all of the locations that are going to participate to get the retrofit done as soon as possible."

According to Hunt, 1,200 stations are needed to take care of 80 percent of the inspections that are being done now.

He noted that Keating has "frantically" been doing two things: one is installing equipment as fast as possible; and the other is to keep pace with new equipment orders.

According to Montbleau, "Everyone is racing to get the equipment on board and get their inspection stations retrofitted."

According to the survey by Middlesex East, in many cases this will also involve adding a bay onto many of the service stations. One complaint of several people not continuing to do inspections is that the equipment is too large and they would lose repair space.

Montbleau noted that the details about how inspectors will be qualified is due out this week and then NESSARA will arrange to schedule the schooling that will be needed.

"I believe there will be enough locations going to run the program," Montbleau said.

NESSARA Vice President Craig Van Batenburg is credited by the organization with leading the drive to bring the program up to the specifications where member service stations wanted to join.

"The shop owners wanted to know the fees for the inspections," Van Batenburg said.

The problem at the start was, one of politics. The federal government was mandating the program but the Cellucci administration was trying to keep the cost of it to the automobile owners down to a minimum.

Governor A. Paul Cellucci attempted to keep the raise in price, from the existing $15 per inspection, down to only $23 per inspection. However, many of the station owners and NESSARA balked at this.

Van Batenburg said, "NESSARA worked very hard to let the other shops in the state (aside from the about 300 that were going along with the deal) know how bad the deal was."

Van Batenburg noted that, although the budget was limited, the hard work of himself, Montbleau and Tom Porter, another NESSARA official, and a strong lobbyist led the state to change their minds on many pieces of the program beside the fee structure.

As a result of the lobbying effort:

- The fee was raised to $29 per-year;

- The stations will only pay $450 per-month service fee as opposed to a proposed $750;

- Station owners who wish to opt out of the program can do so with a $1,200 buyout instead of having to go the full seven years; and

- Fines for abuse of the program have been down-sized and placed on a system that takes into consideration the degree of the abuse.

Not everybody is happy with the new system. In part 2 of this story Middlesex East will go into reasons why some station owners have opted to stop a sometimes lucrative inspection sticker business. We will also go into more detail of what the program will entail.

BY PAUL FEELY

The AAU Massachusetts Wildcats, a 14-and-under boys basketball team coached by READING'S DUANE SIGSBURY and WOBURN'S DICK SKEFFINGTON, recently made it to the equivalent of the NCAA's "Big Dance" by qualifying for the U-14 Nationals in Orlando, Florida.

Played at the Wide World of Sports complex, home of the Atlanta Braves' spring training grounds, the Wildcats went 2-1 in a preliminary round series. Their record qualified them for the Nationals, one of 64 teams in the country to make the elite tournament.

In the preliminaries, the Wildcats lost their opener to the Michigan Gold, 83-66. But they battled back to beat the Seattle Gold 68-63 and the St. Louis Fire 69-61, which secured them a second seeding in their pool and a berth into the 64 team tournament.

Starring for the Wildcats were Chris Skeffington of Woburn, Dwight Brewington, a 6-3 point guard from Lynn who will attend Wakefield High this year, John Murphy of North Reading and Joseph Marpeau of Cambridge.

In the national tourney, the Wildcats fell into the loser's bracket quickly with a narrow 70-69 defeat to the Fairfax Virginia Gold. But they rallied again, beating the North Carolina Nets Gold team 73-68 and the Utah Wolves Silver 77-64. They were finally eliminated by the Wichita Wizards Gold 62-55 to finish with an overall record of 4-3.

The Wildcats failed to crack the top 20 but represented Massachusetts and New England well, finishing higher than any other team from the region.

During the tournament, the team stayed at the Residence Inn Marriott and traveled to Disney World and Blizzard Beach, among other tourist attractions.

"It was a lot of fun, and we got the chance to play basketball against some of the best players in the country," said Sigsbury.

In the seven games, Skeffington scored 11, 12, 10, 19, 21, 13 and 15 points respectively. In his 21 point effort against the North Carolina Nets Skeffington sank three three-pointers.

Brewington, one of the area's top prospects, scored 19, 26, 27, 23, 19, 18, and 15 points respectively. Murphy scored 8, 8, 10, 9, 9, 10 and 8, and Marpeau poured in 16, 16, 16, 18, 16, 25 and 12.

MIDDLESEX EAST SPORTS WEEKLY TRIVIA QUESTION: Only two men managed American League teams to a pennant in the 1950s. Who were they? Answer appears elsewhere in this column.

The date for the sixth annual UNICORN RECREATION AREA COMMITTEE PAR-3/CHILD JUNIOR GOLF TOURNAMENT has been set for Saturday, August 28 at the Stoneham Oaks Par 3 Golf Course and Unicorn Golf Course.

This nine-hole event is cosponsored by Stoneham Savings Bank and is open to the children of Stoneham only, ages 7 to 11 (par 3) and 12 and up (Unicorn) and their parent(s). The cost is $25 for the Par 3 course and $30 for Unicorn for a child and their parent, and $15 for each additional family participant. Checks can be made out to Stoneham Junior Golf Tournament and mailed to Stoneham Savings Bank, 359

Main Street, Stoneham, MA. The entry deadline is this Friday, August 13, so sign up now and be assured a slot. An application form can be picked up at either of the golf courses or at the Stoneham Savings Bank.

The day's activities will include a round of golf at Stoneham Oaks or Unicorn Golf Course and a cookout. Prizes will be awarded by age bracket, individual stroke play for both parent and child. Each player must have his/her own clubs. Foursomes will be arranged by ages/ability. Organizers will attempt to accommodate requests for foursomes.

This tournament provides a chance for the children of Stoneham to use the town's facilities, as well as spend quality time with their parents engaged in a fun and healthy activity.

Need some clues to help out with the above-mentioned trivia question? One of the men was named Al.

ANSWER TO THIS WEEK'S TRIVIA QUESTION: The two men were Al Lopez, who won in 1954 with the Cleveland Indians and in 1959 with the Chicago White Sox; and Casey Stengel, who won the pennant the other eight years with the New York Yankees. Congratulations to those that knew the answer, and look next week for another trivia question.

COMMEMORATIVE MEDALLION

People from all walks of life worldwide have joined together to show their love of history and preserving USS Constitution, the oldest commissioned warship in the world, by adding the USS Constitution Museum's commemorative medallion to their collection.

Response to the limited-edition medallion has been overwhelming since it was introduced this past April in the Museum Gift Store. Museum Store Director of Retail Operations Chris White said more than 2,000 of the 5,000 medallions authorized by the Museum have been sold. He said orders have come from the museum's direct mail campaign, coin publications, purchases made at the store, and through the museum's web page. With over 40 percent of the supply accounted for, demand for these medallions continue to increase, according to White.

The medallion is made from the copper sheathing taken from USS Constitution during her 1974 overhaul. The obverse side features the ship under sail with the words "USS CONSTITUTION/OLD IRONSIDES." The reverse side has a picture of a 24-pound cannon with the quote "The ship! Never has she failed us!" said by Commodore William Bainbridge during an 1831 celebratory dinner.

Each commemorative medallion cost $19.95 each and can be purchased at the USS Constitution Museum Store, located in the Charlestown Navy Yard, Building 22. Those who cannot visit the Museum Store may purchase them through the museum's web page at www.ussconstitutionmuseum.org. The $19.95 price does not include shipping and handling.

Folic acid: the flip side of food fortification

Adding an essential vitamin to the food supply may seem like a win-win. The U.S. Food and Drug Administration is requiring manufacturers to enrich cereal-grain foods with folic acid - an important B vitamin.

The new law is being implemented to help women of child-bearing age reduce their risk of giving birth to children with certain spinal defects. There is, however, concern that additional folic acid might mask symptoms of another common nutritional problem - vitamin B12 deficiency. Vitamin B12 deficiency affects millions of Americans and can occur when people have trouble absorbing the vitamin.

Common symptoms of vitamin B12 deficiency include fatigue, forgetfulness, sore tongue and tingling in the hands and feet. Left untreated, vitamin B12 deficiency can lead to disorientation, agitation, unsteadiness, confusion, and permanent dementia.

The good news is that a simple blood test can diagnose vitamin B12 deficiency, which is easily treated.

The Gables at Winchester celebrates assisted living

The Gables at Winchester announced that September 12-18 is Massachusetts Assisted Living Week, as declared by Governor Paul Cellucci.

Assisted Living is a unique combination of housing, supportive services, personalized assistance, and health care delivered in a residential environment. The emphasis of Assisted Living is for each individual to have his or her needs met 24 hours a day, seven days a week, in a dignified manner by a well trained, caring staff.

As one of the fastest growing segments of the senior care industry, Assisted Living is becoming an increasingly attractive option for seniors who want to maintain their independence and privacy, do not require full-time skilled nursing care, but need supervision and support with their daily routines. With the emergence of managed care and integrated health care delivery systems, Assisted Living is seen as an attractive, lower-cost care option for senior to age with dignity and grace within their own community.

Assisted Living communities can range from high-rise apartment complexes to Victorian style homes. Most Assisted Living residences are single apartments with private baths, and while many units have small kitchens, most offer three meals a day in a communal dining room. There is no single blueprint, allowing for the wide variety of consumers' needs and preferences. Costs vary with the residence, room size, and types of services provided to residents.

The Gables at Winchester is a 125 unit Retirement Community residence providing both independent and Assisted Living to its residents for over eight years.

The Gables is a member of the Massachusetts Assisted Living Facilities Association (Mass-ALFA), a nonprofit organization dedicated to supporting the Assisted Living industry and enhancing the quality of life in Assisted Living residences.

For more information about Assisted Living, or to arrange for a tour of The Gables at Winchester, call Elaine Raymond at (781) 756-1026.

A diet for high cholesterol

If you're ready to clobber high cholesterol - that's any level of 200 or more - here's the diet for you! It's a mostly vegetarian, ultra-low-fat eating plan that may do more than simply chop cholesterol readings, as important as that is. According to research by Dean Ornish, M.D., author of Dr. Dean Ornish's Program for Reversing Heart Disease (Random House, 1990) and Eat More, Weigh Less (HarperCollins, 1993), this diet may even help clear away the cholesterol that's built up inside arteries.

Here's how:
Eat more fruits and veggies. Once again, it's nature's pharmacy to the rescue. Focus on a mostly plant-based diet, rich in vegetables, fruits, grains and beans, which are naturally low in fat and high in fiber.

When you eat a low-fat diet (holding total fat to roughly 10 percent of calories), you sidestep every known booster of blood cholesterol - too much total fat, saturated fat, trans fatty acids and dietary cholesterol.

But there's a second payoff: On this plant-based diet, you naturally munch lots of soluble fiber, a proven cholesterol cruncher. At the same time, you stock up on antioxidant vitamins C and beta-carotene, folate, flavonoids and other plant compounds.

Your anticancer food pharmacy

What's responsible for the anticancer effect of fruits and vegetables? That's the question tantalizing scientists around the world, and phytochemicals - compounds in broccoli, carrots, bok choy and other foods - may just be the answer. Thousands of phytochemicals are present in produce - so many that researchers have yet to identify and isolate all of them. Here are the 14 general classes of phytochemicals that research has identified as possible cancer fighters and the foods in which you can find them. Experts emphasize, however, that you get the benefits of phytochemicals through a mixture of vegetables and fruits.

- Carotenoids - cruciferous vegetables such as broccoli, cabbage, brussels sprouts, cauliflower and bok choy; greens, carrots, tomatoes, pumpkin, winter squash, melon, citrus fruits

- Coumarins - parsley, parsnips, cucumbers

- Flavonoids - soybeans (including soy-based foods such as tofu and tempeh); eggplant, flax

- Phenolic acids - cruciferous vegetables, greens, carrots, celery, parsley, parsnips, tomatoes, eggplant, peppers, cucumbers, pumpkin, squash, melon, soybeans, citrus fruits

- Glucarates - whole grains, cruciferous vegetables, citrus fruits, tomatoes, eggplant, peppers

- Indoles - cruciferous vegetables

- Isothiocyanates - cruciferous vegetables

- Lignans - soybeans and soy products, flaxseed

- Monoterpenes - garlic, cruciferous vegetables, citrus fruits, parsley, carrots, celery, cucumbers, parsnips, squash, tomatoes, eggplant, peppers, fennel

- Phthalides - carrots, celery, parsley, parsnips, fennel

- Phytates - soybeans and soy products, whole grains

- Polyacetylenes - fennel, celery, parsley, carrots

- Sulfides - garlic, cruciferous vegetables, onions

- Triterpenes - garlic, soybeans, whole grains, cruciferous vegetables, celery, carrots, tomatoes, cucumbers, squash, eggplant, peppers

School Notes

by Phyllis Nissen

Publishing, exploring, and following the lights

The language of love in Woburn

"For the second time this year, students in Mrs. McGrath's 8th grade French classes have written books in French for the students in the YMCA Pre-School program at the Joyce Middle School," notes the Woburn edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"Earlier this year, the French students 'published' individual books featuring topics learned by and of interest to the preschoolers such as colors, numbers and animals."

"The young 'teachers' taught their eager students the alphabet in French and the song Frere Jacques before settling down to read to their own student."

"This time, with much more facility with the French language, the students wrote and illustrated stories on a wide range of fun topics."

"The Pre-schoolers were taken on a visit to the zoo, to a day at the beach, to have fun with the family at a playground and to the many adventures through the wonderful world of books."

"Before reading their stories, the children learned how animals 'speak' in French. A duck doesn't say 'quack quack.' He says 'counin counin.'"

"Cows say 'meuh' and pigs say 'gnouf gnouf.' Really they do, just listen!"

"The French students took great care in the preparation of their books."

"They put to a wonderful, practical use the concepts learned during the school year."

"What a delight for the young 'teachers' to see such joy and interest shown by 'their students....'"

Wings aloft in Stoneham

"Noodle necklaces. Silly putty. Teddy Bear picnics. This summer, there has been so much more going on than books at the junior library within the colorful, decorated walls of the Stoneham Public Library on Main Street, like the Crazy Clothes Costume Party, Dino Day, Hot Dog Finale and much more," notes the "Stoneham Independent."

"Books, of course, remain central to this festive environment. As you take a right when you first walk into the library and walk towards the room where the tables and chairs are suited to those not quite four feet tall, you'll see two giant butterflies on either side of you. They're a couple of smiling, giant insects built entirely of multi-hued pieces of construction paper, and on their fully extended wings are a series of circles showcasing the names of children and the books they have read. Orbiting these two butterflies are tiny, round paper flowers, each one watered with a clever joke supplied by young avid readers with a knack for punch lines. For example, what animal should you not play chess with? A cheetah. Try this one: Why are flags so friendly? Because they are always waving. One more. Why did the golfer wear two pairs of pants? In case he got a hole in one. All right, so maybe you saw a lot of those coming. Probably not, though, if you're only in your single digits."

"Funny things happen when you read. That's the theme this summer that has been carrying youthful patrons at the children's library from the last day of school in June to the first one...just around the corner."

Star power in Lynnfield

"In the darkness of a student-filled dome the constellations become as visible as they are in the wilderness of northern New Hampshire and Maine," notes the "Lynnfield Villager."

"Tiny speckles of light cluttered the inside of the synthetic igloo, and Lynnfield Middle Schoolers gawked in awe of the heavenly simulation."

"LMS fifth-graders visited the

WEDNESDAY/THURSDAY, AUGUST 25, 26, 1999-PAGE S-7
'STARLAB,' a portable planetarium which stood 10 feet high and had a 16 foot diameter, that was set up in the school auditorium for the day.

"They crawled inside the nylon-reinforced dome and listened to a presentation given by Dr. Mario Motta, a local amateur astronomer."

A projector in the center of the planetarium cast images of stars all around the group of nearly 20 children. With the aid of a laser pointer, Dr. Motta identified key stars and visible constellations for each of the four seasons.

"With a change of cylinders, lines connected the dots, creating stick figures of people and animals strewn across the sky. With one more change Orion, Pegasus and Scorpio came to life, along with all the other constellations, creating scenes of mythological characters in space."

"The STARLAB came to LMS as part of Project ASTRO."

"Project ASTRO is a program funded by the National Science Foundation and NASA aiming to support science education by linking teachers and their stu-

New children's store now open

Special orders, free gift wrapping and personalized service are all things that Goodhearts "A Shop for Children" bring to its new address in downtown Reading.

Owner Debbie Rio and her staff have been working diligently the past several months filling the store with all top end merchandise at very moderate prices.

The store has been opened since July but Debbie chose to spend several weeks finalizing everything so it would be just right for last Saturday's "Grand Opening".

"We will be carrying children's clothing and accessories" says Debbie "specializing in preemie to 6X for girls and up to size 7 for boys. We also have a large inventory of Special Occasion' goods" comments Debbie "for such things as baptisms, confirmations and many more".

Debbie says "Our goal is to provide quality merchandise at a reasonable price in a convenient downtown location."

The Goodhearts motto is "Quality, Value, Service".

Goodhearts will have convenient hours being open Monday thru Saturday 10:00 am to 5:00 pm.

In addition to Debbie, her daughter, Jaclyn is also on the staff which makes it a real family run business.

Among the speciality items at Goodhearts are portraits drawn from photographs, handcrafted personalized accessories and handcrafted rocking chairs.

The store is located in the middle of Reading square on Harnden St. on the right from large traffic beacon in the square.

Any questions you can call Debbie or Jaclyn at 781-942-9700.

Sept. 1-10-15 for the Dance Complex II in North Reading. Further information may be obtained by calling (781) 321-3227 (Malden) or (978) 664-1870 (North Reading).

After school club open house

The After School Club, a school-age child care program sponsored jointly by the United Methodist Church of Woburn and the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, invites the public to a series of open houses at the Lutheran Church, 60 Forest Park Rd., Woburn on Thursday, August 26 from 5 to 6:30 pm.

During the school year, transportation is provided for Woburn school children in grades one to six. The after school schedule allows time for free play indoors and outdoors, arts and crafts, science, sports, cooking, puzzles and games, as well as snacks, reading time, and homework supervision.

Care is also available on early release days, during school vacation weeks, and during the summer.

A special feature of the program is its emphasis on responsibility, peaceful conflict resolution, and respect. The children are held to a very high standard of behavior at all times.

Those seeking licensed child care for school year 1999-2000 are invited to come visit during the open house. The year begins with a full day of care on Tuesday, September 8.

Please call Director Leslie Hastings at 937-7670 for further information, for a brochure, or to arrange a visit at another time.

It's our 4th annual Summer photo contest entries rolling in

The Fourth Annual Middlesex East Summer Photo Contest is now underway and readers are encouraged to submit their favorite photo or photos to win up to $100 in prizes and a chance to maybe have your photo published.

The rules are pretty simple and there is a wide open list of possibilities for photos. Your favorite beach scene is obvious, but it may be a shot in your garden or someone working on the lawn or maybe in a lounge chair at the beach. Anything to do with summer will qualify. How about your favorite classic convertible or a nice gooey ice cream that your grandchild is wearing. They're all great and our readers love to see them.

There are two major categories, one for general photos and a second for juniors 18 and under. No professional photographers please. The deadline is Thursday, September 9th.

There will be a first, second and third place prize in the overall category and one overall winner in the junior category.

We will accept color or black and white photos and will make every effort to allow you to pick-up your photo at a convenient location at the end of the contest. We reserve the right to publish your photo once submitted.

We also ask that you clearly mark the photos on the back stating your name, phone number, address, the name of the persons or things in photos and where the photo was taken. Pretty simple!

There is an advertisement elsewhere in today's paper spelling out the details in full.

So, dig out those photos, select your favorite or favorites and enter today you've got nothing to lose and maybe you'll even win a prize. We love to see your photos and in our last contest we had a great variety and volume of photos and are looking forward to a similar number this time.

Jimmy Bruce told me, "Chipper, because many marriages end up in divorce after less than two years of marriage, I don't give any wedding gifts until I know the couple is still married after two years."

Officer John Daigle asked my cousin Mario DiMino, "can you describe the man who beat you up?" "Officer, that's exactly what I was doing when he punched me in the nose."

Phil Barletta stopped his truck and asked, "Chipper why in the world are you walking back and forth in front of your house on such a cold day?" "Phil," I said, "Kathy is practicing her singing and I don't want my neighbors to think I'm beating her up!"

I took Kathy out to dinner and I asked the head waiter, "how long for a table?" He smiled and said, "Ten dollars or one hour which ever comes first."

Bob Bonney asked the cab driver, "what is your fare?" "Two dollars for the first quarter mile and one dollar a mile there after." "Okay", Bob said, "get going, I'll run behind you for the first quarter mile."

After singing several hymns, the reverend said to the congregation, "that was wonderful, now let's all turn to number 10 in our wallets."

When Joe Passer was a letter carrier, he noticed a youngster trying desperately to reach a doorbell button. Joe dashed up the steps and gave the button a generous push. The kid shouted, "gee thanks Mister, now, let's run like heck!"

I told Joe D'Ambrosio Jr. that he is more handsome than most movie actors in Hollywood. "Chipper, do you think I should go there and take a screen test?" "You have nothing to lose," I told him, "even if you're not hired, the walk will do you a world of good!"

When my sister Maureen was sixteen years old, she said to Aunt Nora, "My birthday party is tomorrow, what would you want Aunt Nora if you were sixteen?" My aunt sat down and said, "if I could be sixteen again, I wouldn't want another darn thing."

"What does that mean?" Some commonly used building terms and definitions follow for your information:

VALLEY. Angle formed when two sloping sides of a roof meet.
VAPOR BARRIER. Aluminum foil, kraft paper or polyethylene designed to prevent passage of water vapor through or into exterior walls. Always placed toward the heated part of the house. Used in conjunction with insulation and ventilation.
WALLBOARD. A catch-all word for a wall covering that is confusing because it means anything from plasterboard to composition board.

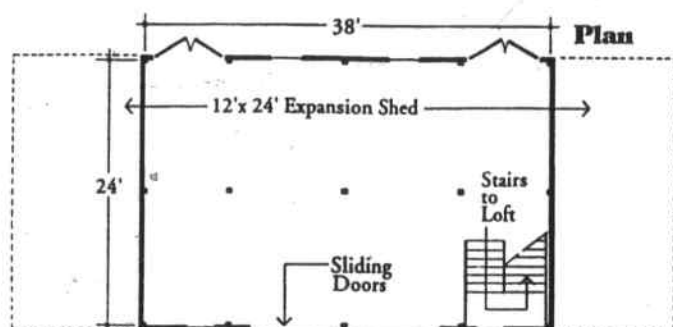

A carriage house for today's home

Yesterday's best homes had elegant carriage houses. Now you can build a versatile new backyard barn and add some of the same charm to your home.

The Ashford Carriage House is a big two-bay garage with added floor space, a walk-up loft and a unique layout. The sliding ment, bikes or sport vehicles. Optional expansion sheds, for each side, can provide two more full-size parking spaces or room for a workshop or studio.

Architect Donald Berg planned the Ashford Carriage house to look good in a country setting or as the garage of a tra-front doors open 8'6" high and 9' wide for big SUVs, campers or boats. Two sets of back doors are for tractors, yard equipditional-style home. His building plans are designed for inexpensive pole-frame construction. The blueprints include all the drawings you'll need to build the garage and the expansion sheds and come with a money-back guarantee. To order a set, call (516) 766-5585 or send $15 plus $4 postage and handling to Donald J. Berg, AIA, Plan #A202, PO Box 698, Rockville Centre, NY 11571.

Real Estate seminar on technology

The Massachusetts Association of Realtors (MAR) will co-sponsor a one-day seminar entitled "Selling Like a Giant in Cyberspace," on Sept. 16 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the main auditorium of the Federal Reserve Bank in Boston.

Along with MAR, the Greater Boston Real Estate Board, New England Chapter of the Commercial Real Estate Institute, New England Chapter of the Society of Industrial and Office Realtors, the Cape Cod and Islands Association of Realtors, Massachusetts Real Estate Investors Association and The Real Estate CyberSpace Society will co-sponsor the seminar.

The program is ideal for agents looking to expand their business dramatically, quickly and inexpensively using specially designed Internet and email techniques. Topics to be covered include: how to get started in Cyberspace; how to build and keep Cyberspace clientele; how to reach 15,000 buyers or sellers instantly; and, how to promote yourself, your listings and your services quickly and inexpensively.

John M. Peckham, III, executive director of The Real Estate CyberSpace Society will conduct the Seminar. Attendance at the one-day event will qualify Society members for the RECS (Real Estate CyberSpace Specialist) professional designation.

Tuition for the "Real Estate CyberSpace Strategies" is $40 for MAR members and members from the other co-sponsoring organizations if registered by August 31 and $70 after that date. Non-member tuition is $125 if registered by August 31, $150 after that date. For information or to register by American Express, VISA or MasterCard, contact the MAR Education Dept. toll free at 800-725-6272.

A bright idea for decorating a dorm room

When it comes to cracking open the books, good reading light is essential for creating a comfortable and productive study environment. Yet, after all of the necessary back-to-school purchases - clothes, books, school supplies, study snacks - not every student can afford to invest in a brand-new lamp for his or her dorm room.

For students on shoestring budgets, decor often takes a back seat to function when shopping for dorm-room furniture. While the selection of dusty old lamps on display at a sidewalk sale may seem dim, one bright idea for decorating that can fit any student's budget is customizing a lampshade.

With a few supplies and some imagination a secondhand lamp can be transformed into a brilliant work of art that brightens up a plain room without dulling the decor.

According to "New Decorator (DK), by Julia Barnard with Nicholas Barnard, all that is needed to create a lamp that will bring personality and character to a room is a plain lampshade in a neutral fabric (like unbleached cotton), a dust sheet or large old sheet, a soft lead pencil, oil paint sticks, (available at art shops), clean, old toothbrushes and lint-free soft cloths or paper towels. Simply draw a pattern, paint the fabric, rub in the paint, wipe with a cloth and let dry.

For an added touch decorate with beaded or tasseled trim, or any other "bright" ideas that come to mind.

Nobody Knows Homes Better

From S-3

sent to Town Meeting this fall a proposed rezoning on Wayside Road to construct a parking garage for its development there," notes the Burlington edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"If it is approved by a two-thirds vote of Town Meeting, what is now zoned General Industrial (GI) would become a Planned Development District (PDD).

"Gutierrez Co. Project Manager Joseph Harrington detailed the proposal to the Planning Board at its recent meeting.

"The announcement ends over two years of speculation about what the Gutierrez Co. was planning to do with the site - known as Burlington Office Park II - in terms of zoning.

"Since the Open Market, Inc., building was approved in February 1997, Gutierrez has kept open a public hearing on a proposal to re-zone the parcel.

"This past April, Peter Coppola of the Planning Board asked why the option remained after so long, and Planning Director Tony Fields answered that 'a structured parking option would have to be pursued through a PDD.'

"In addition to Open Market, Nokia Telecommunications, Inc. is currently under construction

WEDNESDAY/THURSDAY, AUGUST 25, 26, 1999-PAGE S-15 and it will be a 135,000-square-foot structure.

"The Gutierrez Co. has received approval for a third building and that would be 155,000 square feet.

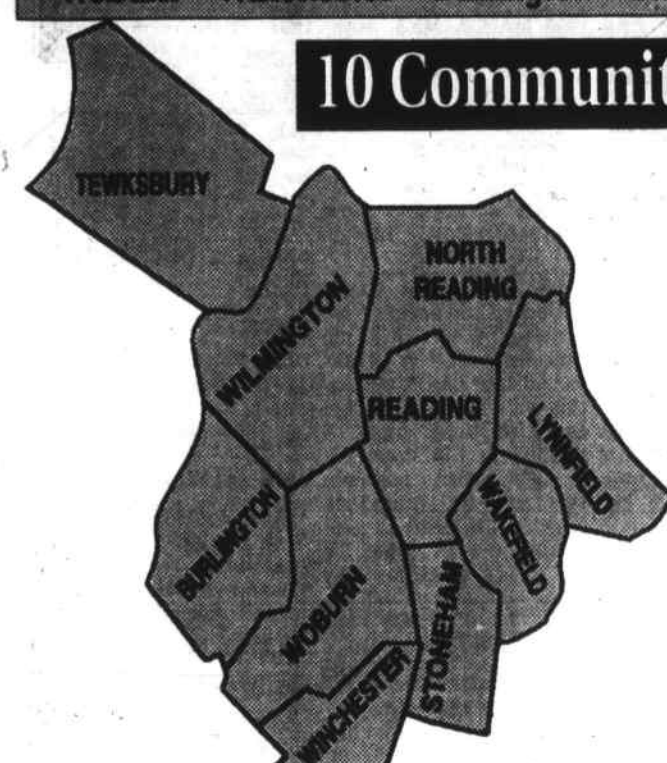

"Harrington explained that under the original plan (which would be scrapped with the rezoning) there would have been a two-tier retaining wall built and all the trees along Cambridge Street removed.

"But with the proposed garage, Harrington said, '100 feet of tree-lined depth into the site' will be preserved.

"We are proposing a parking structure to be set behind the tree line," said Harrington. "We will pursue a PDD at Town Meeting..."
